RECENT DEATHS

Patrick Leonard, one of the oldest employes of the St. Johnsbury and Lake Champlain railroad in Vermont, dropped dead at his home on Portland street Saturday morning. Mr. Leonard went to Abenakis Springs some weeks ago seeking relief from rheumatism with which he had been his usual health. He arose Saturday morning, breakfasted as usual, and in a few minutes passed peacefully away.

Mr. Leonard was born in Cork, Ireland, in December, 1834. In young manhood he went to Lawrence, Mass., and there on May 27, 1855, was united in marriage to Miss Bridget Hougan, a native of Tipperary, Ireland. After their marriage they went to Royalton, where for 20 years Mr. Leonard was a section hand on the Central Vermont railroad. In 1874 they came to St. Johnsbury, Mr. Leonard to become foreman of section 6, St. Johnsbury and Lake Champlain railroad. He held the position until his death. Mrs. Leonard died in 1908, and the year following Mr. Leonard was granted a year's leave of absence by the road. He spent some months with his sons in Toledo, O., and his daughters in Barre. Of their family of eight children six are living, three daughters and three sons. The sons all followed in the footsteps of their father and are all railroad men, John and Dennis holding responsible positions in Toledo, O., and Thomas F., here. The daughters are Mrs. Margaret Nelson, Mrs. Patrick Brown and Mrs. A. J. Bonnette, all of Barre. The funeral was held Tuesday morning from St. Aloysius Church, of which he was a long time member. There were present at the funeral from out of town his sons, John and Dennis from Toledo, his daughters and their husbands and children from Barre, Mrs. Margaret Nelson and three children, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Brown and six children, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bonnette and two children, his two sons-in-law, Patrick McClary and son, and M. J. Tierney and four children, and many friends also from Barre. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard celebrated their golden wedding six years ago, many railroad men uniting in making the occasion a memorable one. Galbraith. Mrs. Jean E., wife of George T Galbraith, and daughter of the late Dr. Thomas Galbraith of Tarentum, Penn., died at the Galbraith homestead near Passumpsic, Sunday, September 4, at 9.40 p. m., after a brief illness. The deceased was a graduate of the Oswego State Normal or in a Brooklyn kindergarten. The funeral services were held Thursday, Sept. 8, at 1 p. m., and, in the absence of her pastor, Rev. Mr. Hill of the North Congregational church, St. Johnsbury, were conducted by Rev. Mr. Clark of Barnet, Rev. Mr. Hawk of Barnet Center, and Rev. Mr. Kendall of Tarentum, Penn., a personal friend of the family. Mrs. Galbraith is survived by her husband, and infant daughter, five months old. Six sisters of Mrs. Galbraith were present at her funeral: Mrs. O. C. Camp and Miss Carrie Galbraith of Tarentum, Penn., Miss Allie Galbraith of Princeton, N. J., and the Misses Margaret, Helen, and Anna Galbraith, of New York City. The interment took place in the family burying ground at Barnet Center.
